MISHAWAKA THEATRES

LINCOLN

Hearts broken and cured! Such was the career the young girl launched into. Soon she was plunged in a deep sea of complications, saving a father from an "honest-to-goodness" vamp, and the father's son from a girl who happened to be herself. How she succeeded with the one and failed in the other assignment is portrayed by Viola Dana in "The Match Breaker," a Dallas M. Fitzgerald production for Metro, showing at the Lincoln theater Monday and Tuesday.

CENTURY

The Century program starting tonight for a three day's engagement includes three snappy vaudeville acts and six reels of motion pictures. Hooker and Davis, presenting their latest novelty, "A Dance Revue" top the variety bill with a combination of new fancy steps, pantomime comedy and an original plot idea. This act has been a feature of the larger vaudeville houses throughout the country for a number of years past. Benson and Johnson, an unusual comedy team, play the roles of society miss and eccentric boob in the bright and clean farcial skit "The Girl and the Goat." The Frisco trio, offer harmony singing of a high order and a vein of smart comedy patter runs through the number.

Grace Darmond is the particular picture star and in "A Beautiful Gambler" plays the role of a girl who makes the greatest sacrifice to save her father, only to find that he commits suicide after it is too late. The action is fast and dramatic and the theme well worked out. A comedy "The Smart Alec" features Harry Sweet.

TEMPLE

The Temple theater, which has been closed all summer, reopens tomorrow afternoon, with a completely remodeled and renovated playhouse, which will seat 1,000 people. A new and improved ventilating system has been installed and no expense has been spared to make the theater comfortable and safe for its patrons. The most modern of projecting machines and a new screen assures the patron of a perfect picture presentation at all times.

The feature of the opening bill which will be shown Saturday and Sunday is a five-part motion picture entitled "Dangerous Toys" and tells of the manner in which a man's faith in womanhood is restored, by the force of love and faith as evidenced by another man and his wife. Frank Lossee carries off the acting honors as the man whose disillusionment leads to his own unhappiness. William Desmond and Marguerite Clayton have prominent supporting roles.
